I began teaching myself programming in 2015 - one year after I moved to Berlin. I was always very good in math, logic and with computers. I spent even 8 hours learning Python and Django while working as Customer Support. I would do commits from a bash on remote server without the need to install anything locally. "Stay Curious" became my personal motto. Besides my unlimited hunger to learn new technologies and current innovations, I love to share my knowledge, work in cross-functional teams, improve the code quality, develop and maintain innovative solutions. The technologies should serve people and make their life easier.
